PREFACE.

In the publication of the Wholesale and Manufacturers' Guide to the City of Winnipeg, the publisher believes he has found the best means of bringing the jobbing trade of the city before the purchasing retail dealers who are on their way to open up business in our rapidly developing western country, and trusts that through his individual efforts, insignificant though they be, a share of the trade that might otherwise go to Ontario will be influenced to investigate the supplying resources of our growing city, satisfied that those who make use of the point here given will be consulting their own interests, by making business connections in Winnipeg, where the wholesale men understand the requirements of the country and take a pleasure in assisting their customers in making a careful selection of stocks suitable for their trade.

His object has been to secure a lasting form of advertisement for his numerous patrons in such a manner as would prove a credit to them as well as himself, and this he believes he has faithfully done, as, amongst the numerous forms brought before his notice, none presented advantages equal to the one selected.

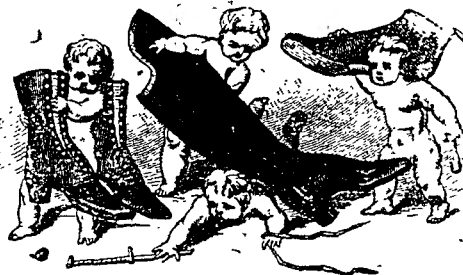

Faithfully,

ABOUT COMING WEST.

Do not come west with a family unless you have enough money to make a fair start.

Do not borrow money to come west. The majority of those we have met in their western homes, who have failed, have been those who came on borrowed money, or without enough funds to insure a send-off.

After reading this article, select such region as you think you will like best. People generally prefer to keep in the latitude they have lived in.

Come in the spring and get acclimated.

Bring as little baggage and as few heir-looms as possible. They cost money for freight, and, in addition, are very likely to be an incumbrance in a new home.

If you are able to do so, you had better first come out and explore the country before bringing your family with you.

Do not attempt to explore too much. We have met people beyond the Missouri river, who had visited nearly all the land grants, and the more they had travelled the more unsettled they were as to where to locate.

Decide upon your climate and locality and then select your land. If you wait too long you are apt to become very much unsettled.

Do not come west not expecting to be homesick for your forests and streams, which present such a contrast to the monotony of endless prairies. It may be very lonely at first, but you will soon plant your own trees, have pleasant surroundings and near neighbours.

Do not come expecting to become rich immediately. Several years of good crops may be required to place you in easy circumstances.

If you are a clerk on small salary in the city and have a few hundred dollars ahead, give up your clerkship and strike western lands. There is no very great amount of experience required in cultivating these prairies.

If you have abundance of money, settle on the lands in the near west. If your funds are comparatively limited, go on still further, where as good land can be purchased at lower figures.

THE PRAIRIE CITY.

Scarce a decade of years hath flown
Over these prairies till late unknown,
Over the fort that the Hudson's Bay
Placed on the line of the Dawson way,
Over the rivers whose currents fleet
Down by the banks of Fort Garry meet.

Scarce a decade hath its changes sung
On the bells of time o'er a land yet young,
And a city hath risen whose golden name
Is from East to West and from North to South
Carried about on the wings of fame
And rife in everybody's mouth.

Crowded roads where the busy throng
And over the sidewalks pass along
Clattering hoofs and shrieking trains,
Creaking wheels of loaded wains,
Clang of hammers and crunching saws,
Whirling mills that know no pause,
Swell the ceaseless din that greets
The ears of those who walk her streets.

Trains and steamers ceaseless come
Laden with freight for our prairie home,
Endless the work for the labor teams
That pass o'er the highways in endless streams.
Down the streets where on either hand
The wholesale houses majestic stand
Like palaces fittingly vast and grand
For a merchant prince of a golden land.

Proud Chicago droop thy crest,
No more the Empress of the west
The laurels fade upon thy brow,
Thy fame ignore inglorious now.
Thy reign is o'er thine Empire fled,
Before a greater bow thy head.
Thine was the past, but to-day I ween
Winnipeg reigns as the Western Queen.

Hers is the crown for the progress vast
 Of a few short years and a business fast
 Increasing incessantly day by day
 With armies of emigrants wending their way
 To our golden west for the golden spoil
 Afforded to all by her fertile soil.

She is this glorious country's heart,
 Where town and land together thrive
 And hamlets scattered far apart,
 Their sustenance from her derive.
 She is the hub, on her relying
 The other towns, like spokes revolve
 On her the task of these supplying,
 Is forced by nature to devolve,
 Destined by man, and nature far the best,
 And greatest city of our New North West.

A LIVE CAR DRIVER.

Of course the Galveston street car company cannot be personally acquainted with every car-driver who is employed. The other day a young jovial fellow was engaged. He had never had any experience, but he was a live man, chuckfull of life and spirits, in fact.

A stout old man, with his coat over his arm, was waiting for the car to come up. As the car came up, the jovial driver reached out and hit the old gentleman (who is one of the wealthiest men in Galveston) a sharp cut with his whip about his circumference, calling out to him at the same time: "I'll bet you the beer that I'll beat you to the next curve, old hoss."

Now, there is nothing in the world funnier than to see a little fat, bald-headed old man in his shirt sleeves, mad as a wet hen, chasing a street car attached to a galloping mule. The race was a close one for the first hundred yards, but then the old man's wind gave out, and he was taken off the track and carried home in a carriage. At all events the driver got to the curve first, while the crowd on the sidewalk applauded vociferously. The little incident passed entirely out of his mind. As soon as he was off duty he was requested to step into the office for a few moments. He came out with his face perfectly blank with amazement.

"What's the matter, Bill?" asked one of the drivers.

"Well, I'll be blowed. I've been discharged after I won the race for the company by four car lengths."

"The old man complained!" remarked another driver.

"Complained, did he? What had he to complain of? Why, I never refused to run the race over with him again. Why didn't he come to me if he had any complaints to make? I see how it is. These corporations have no use for a live man."

MISCELLANEOUS.

Every man is not so much a workman in the world as he is a suggestion that he should be. Men walk as prophecies of the next age.

A clergyman, lecturing one afternoon to his female parishioners, said: 'Be not proud that our Lord paid your sex the distinguished honor of appearing first to a female after the resurrection, for it was only done that the glad news might spread the sooner.'

A very old lady on her deathbed, in the penitential mood, said: 'I have been a great sinner more than eighty years and didn't know it.' An old colored woman, who had lived with her a long time, exclaimed, 'Law, I knowed it all the time.'

A bald-headed man who purchased a front seat for a show of the Black Crook brand, explained that he could not hear very well. A few nights later he was seen at a lecture, sitting on a seat furthest from the stage. Of course, he might have fully recovered his hearing in three days, but such apparent incongruities are apt to occasion remark.

SPOOPENDYKE'S BATHING SUIT.

"My dear," observed Mr. Spoopendyke, looking up from his paper, "I think I would be greatly benefitted this summer by seabaths. Bathing in the surf is an excellent tonic, and if you will make me up a suit and one for yourself, if you like, we'll go down oftner and take a dip in the waves."

"The very thing," smiled Mrs. Spoopendyke; "you certainly need something to tone you up, and there's nothing like salt water. I think I'll make mine of blue flannel, and, let me see, yours ought to be red, my dear."

"I don't think you caught the exact drift of my remark," retorted Mr. Spoopendyke. "I didn't say I was going into the opera business, or that I was going to hire out to some country village as a conflagration. My plan was to go in swimming, Mrs. Spoopendyke, to go in swimming, and not to go up with the country as a cremation furnace. You can make yours of blue if you want, but you don't make mine of red, that's all."

"There's a pretty shade of yellow flannel—"

"Most indubitably, Mrs. Spoopendyke, but if you think I am going to masquerade around Manhattan beach in the capacity of a ham, you haven't yet seized my idea. I don't apprehend that I shall benefit by the waters any more by going around looking like a Santa Cruz rum barrel. What I want is a bathing suit, and if you can't get one up without making me look like a Fulton street car, I'll go and buy something to suit me."

"Would you want it all in one piece, or do you want pants and blouse?"

"I want a suit easy to get in and out of. I'm not particular about following the fashion. Make up something neat, plain and substantial, but don't stick any fancy colours into it. I want it modest and serviceable."

Mrs. Spoopendyke made up the suit under the guidance of a lady friend, whose aunt had told her how it should be constructed. It was in one piece, and when completed was rather a startling garment.

'I'll try it on to-night,' said Mr. Spoopendyke, eyeing it askance when it was handed him.

'Before retiring, Mr. Spoopendyke examined the suit, and then began to get into it.

'Why didn't you make some legs to it? What d'ye want to make if all arms for?' he inquired, struggling around to see why it didn't come up behind.

'You have got it on sideways,' exclaimed Mrs. Spoopendyke, 'You've got one leg into the sleeve.'

'I've got to get it on sideways. There ain't any top to it. Don't you know enough to put the arms up where they belong. What d'ye think I am, anyhow? A star-fish? Where does this leg go?'

'Right in there. That's the place for that leg.'

'Then where's the leg that goes in this hole?'

'Why, the other leg.'

'The measly thing is all legs. Who'd you make this thing for—me? What d'ye you take me for—a centipede? Who else is going to get in here with me? I want somebody else. I ain't twins. I can't fill this business up. What d'ye you call it, anyway, a family machine?'

'Those other place's ain't legs, they're sleeves.'

'What are they doing down there? Why ain't they up here where they belong? What are they there for—snow shoes? S'pose I'm going to stand on my head to get my arms in those holes?'

'I don't think you've got it on right,' suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'It looks twisted.'

'That's the way you told me. You said, 'Put this leg here and that one there,' and there they are. Now where does the rest of me go?'

'I made it according to the pattern,' sighed Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'Then it's all right, and it's me that's twisted,' sneered Mr. Spoopendyke. 'I'll have my arms and legs altered. All I want is to have my legs jammed in the small of my back and my arms stuck in my hips; then it'll fit. What did you take for a pattern, a crab? Wher'd you find the lobster you made this from? S'pose I'm going into the water on all fours? I told you I wanted a bathing suit, didn't I? Did I say anything about a chair cover?'

'I think if you take it off and try it on over again it'll work,' reasoned Mrs. Spoopendyke.

Pronounce it the Best Mower in the Market.

The Centennial Hay Rake, sold by A. Harris, Son & Co., Winnipeg, has 611 Tempered Steel Teeth.

'Oh, of course. I've only got to humor the blasted thing. That's all it want's,' and Mr. Spoopendyke wrenched it off with a growl.

'Now pull it on,' said Mrs. Spoopendyke.

Mr. Spoopendyke went at it again and reversed the original order of disposing his limbs.

'Suit you now? he howled. 'That's the way you meant it to go? What's these things flopping around here?

'Those are the legs, I'm afraid,' said Mrs. Spoopendyke, dejectedly.

'What are they doing up here? I see; oh, I see, this is supposed to represent me making a dive. When I get this on, I'm going head first. Where's the balance? Where's the rest? Give me the suit that represents my head up,' and Mr. Spoopendyke danced around the room in fury.

'Just turn it over,' my dear, said Mrs. Spoopendyke, 'and you are all right'.

'How'm I going to turn it over?' yelled Mr. Spoopendyke. 'Spose I'm going to carry around a steam boiler to turn me over when I want the other end of this thing up? Spose I'm going to hire a man to go around with a griddle spoon and turn me over like a flap-jack, just to please this dog-plasted bathing suit? D'ye think I work on pivots?' Just take it off and put it on the other way," urged Mrs. Spoopendyke, who began to see her way clear.

"Mr. Spoopendyke kicked the structure up to the ceiling, and plunged into it once more. This time it came out all right, and as he buttoned it up and surveyed himself in the glass, the clouds passed away and he smiled.

"I like it," he remarked, "the colour suits me, and I think you have done very well, my dear; only," and he frowned slightly, "I wish you would mark the arms and legs so I can distinguish one from the other, or some day I will present the startling spectacle of a respectable elderly gentleman hopping around the beach upside down; That's all."—Brooklyn Eagle.

RAILROAD SOCIALIBILITY.

'Speaking about the sociability of railroad travellers, said the man with the crutches and a watch pocket over his eye. 'I never got so well acquainted with the passengers on a train, as I did the other day on the Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. We were going at the rate of thirty miles an hour, and another train from the other direction telescoped us. We were all thrown into each other's society and brought into immediate social contact, so to speak.

'I went over and sat in the lap of a corpulent lady from Manitoba, and a girl from Chicago jumped over nine seats and sat down on the plug hat of a preacher from La Crosse, with so much timid, girlish enthusiasm, that it shoved his hat clear down over his shoulders.

'Everybody seemed to lay aside the usual cool reserve of strangers, and we made ourselves entirely at home.

'A shy young man with an emaciated oil-cloth valise left his own seat and went over and sat down in a lunch basket where a bridal couple seemed to be wrestling with their first picnic. Do you suppose that reticent young man would have done such a thing on ordinary occasions? Do you think if he had been at a celebration at home, that he would have risen impetuously and gone where those people were eating by themselves, and sat down in the cranberry jelly of a total stranger?

'I should rather think not.

'Why, one old man who probably at home led the class meeting, and who was as dignified as Roscoe Conkling's father, was eating a piece of custard pie when we met the other train, and he left his own seat and went over to the front end of the car and shot that piece of custard pie into the ear of a beautiful widow from Winnipeg.

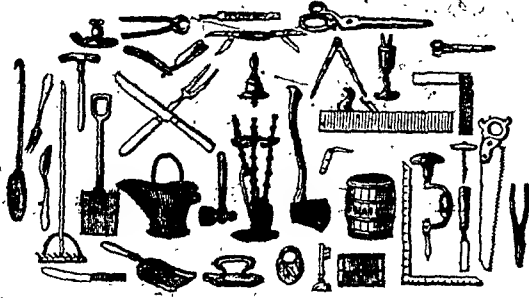

'People travelling somehow forget the austerity of their home lives, and form acquaintances that sometimes last through life.'—Laramie Boomerang.

THE problem of life is to find out the duties of life and to fulfill them. A man's character is what he is, his reputation is what people imagine him to be. Character is one thing, reputation another, and sometimes they are as far apart as the east and west—different as day and night. Character and reputation; why the greatest character in all history made himself of no reputation. Public men are constantly making and losing reputations—as the stars went down and came up; but there is the difference, a star that sets will rise again, but a star that falls is lost for ever.—[THEODORE TILTON, in the N. Y. Herald.

THE JUDGE has innocently caused two hearts to beat as two—all on account of the following paragraph which recently appeared in its columns: "The best time to offer your hand to a lady—when she is getting out of the omnibus." Young Joughnès took this advice literally, and the next time he was riding in an omnibus with his girl, he proposed as she was alighting from the vehicle, "right afore folks." She blushed crimson, and, giving him an angry look, exclaimed, in a "loud whisper," "Why you idiot! How could you make such a fool of yourself in this public manner? Have you been drinking?" They don't speak now.

A STRANGE thing happened in Philadelphia the other day. A young girl's hand was sought in marriage both by a foreign count and an industrious butcher. To the surprise of her lady friends, she accepted the butcher. Very few girls would have displayed so much good sense in choosing a husband.

RIGHT on the heels of the news from the ill-fated "Jeannette" and her crew, a member of Congress introduces a bill asking an appropriation to fit out another Arctic expedition. Unless he can successfully plead temporary insanity, he should be clothed in a linen duster, nankeen knee-breeches, and a straw hat, and set adrift in the Arctic Ocean on a seventeen-ton iceberg, his provisions consisting solely of ice-water and frozen custard, with ice-cream for a dessert.

A PATENT medicine testimonial winds up with: "I have taken only two boxes of your pills, and my appetite is completely restored. I now eat like a horse." It must look odd to see a man eating like a horse—inserting his head in a trough and munching his victuals, without using either hands, knife or fork. No matter how keen a man's appetite may be, aided and abetted by pills, he should not eat like a horse. It is a violation of the rules of etiquette.

OSCAR'S NEW BREECHES.

A NEW YORK man-milliner—we learn from the daily press—has built too too-too suits for Oscar Wilde, from designs furnished by the æsthete himself. It appears, from the description given, that they are to be a combination of the Queen-Anne-Renaissance-Idiotique-Darnphool period. One of the suits is to be a sort of couleur de snellac au fait moon-on-the-Rhine velvet, and the other black. The latter has a slashed doublet, tight-fitting, entrain, with consummately wide Spanish lace, all but flounces and hem-stitched de trop, embossed velvet sleeves, sunflower trimming, with flutings and flings cut en wriggle, lilyful puffs at the shoulders, and relieved with more antiquity rutabaga donjon brocade overlapping the seam. The breeches will come to the knee and twenty-seven dollars, cut decollete, with kneepiusultra band of camel's-hide, and fastened with recherche mesalliance buttons of applique chenille and patti de foie nun's veiling, with a soulful ruffle. The stockings are of black silk, with cafe-au-lait side-pleatings of jubejube and polonaise to match, the whole to be worn separately, or in pieces, as may be preferred. No 11 shoes cut low in the neck, fastened with a silver buckle of the Silurian period. The foregoing description is given from memory, but it will be found to correspond in every important particular with the original. When Oscar appears on the platform in one of these suits, the unanimous verdict will be that he is "too sweet to live," and some one may shoot him, to put him out of his misery.

A writer asks: "Does the world miss any one?" Yes; the world misses every woman who has never accumulated an incumbrance called a husband.

A New Jersey editor wrote a labored editorial, showing that "woman is physically inferior to man." Then he went home, and looked on approvingly while his wife lugged up two scuttles of coal from the cellar, riddled a pan of ashes, spaded up a flower bed, and cooked supper for a family of six. The poor man was so exhausted after writing his editorial that he hadn't strength enough left to assist his wife in her labors.

A PROPOSITION was made in the shape of a laughing amendment to the bill allowing women to vote at Albany, that no woman be allowed to enjoy the franchise until she was fifty years of age. This was quite as bad as striking out the enacting clause, for what female, however bad she wanted to vote, would acknowledge that she was fifty years of age? It was just too mean for anything—there now! The idea that such bills are laughed out of Albany every year is too much, and by-and-by the ladies are going to do something about it.

CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES

ON THE LINE OF THE

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

WINNIPEG.

The capital of Manitoba, situated at the junction of the Red and Assiniboine Rivers, on the main line of the C. P. R., 68 miles north of St. Vincent. The General Offices of the Road and of the Land Department are situated in Winnipeg, the latter on the southwest corner of Broadway and Main Street.

Winnipeg is noted for its commanding topographical position, its splendid avenues, fine buildings, its enterprise and healthful location.

There are churches of all religious denominations, excellent schools and a number of beneficial societies. The city possesses several manufacturing enterprises, a number of jobbing houses, and is the centre of a large and fast increasing lumber trade. Farming implements, supplies, household goods, groceries, provisions, dry goods, hardware, etc., are sold at wholesale and retail. There are three daily and several weekly newspapers. Business is active at all seasons of the year, and building enterprises are increasing faster than builders can secure the services of mechanics. While the cost of living remains at minimum rates, the wages paid to artisans in every branch of industry are exceptionally high. The "going rate" for the season of 1881 is appended; masons and bricklayers received $6. per day; stone-cutters, $3.50 to $4; painters, $3 to $3.50; carpenters, $3.50; blacksmiths, $3; and others in proportion. What is true of Winnipeg regarding wages of mechanics is true of Emerson, Portage la Prairie, Brandon and other points in Manitoba on the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Winnipeg is growing very fast in wealth and population, and is conceded to be the most progressive city of its size and age on the continent. As an evidence of this fact it may be stated that $2,055,100 were expended here in buildings and permanent improvements during the year

Winnipeg is connected with the interior and the Canadian Northwest by the Canadian Pacific Railway and steamers, which ply from different points on the line in all directions on the Red, Assiniboine and Saskatchewan Rivers, as far south as Moorhead, Minn., as far to the north-west as Fort Ellice and points beyond.

Winnipeg is the metropolis of the Northwest, the point of departure for the wheat lands of the Canadian Northwest, and the base of supplies for that immense area of country. It is an enterprising and rapidly growing city, and is destined to grow to great proportions, keeping pace with the development of the country along the line of and tributary to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE.

This enterprising city is situated on the main line of the C. P. R., 68 miles west of Winnipeg and 136 miles from St. Vincent, in the midst of an unsurpassed agricultural country dotted with some of the most highly productive farms in the world. The city is constantly increasing in population and material wealth. The streets are all graded, broad, striking, well paved; the buildings are substantial and in some cases pretentious. There are excellent public schools, five churches, a town-hall and market, good hotels, a fire department, flour mills and excellent local government. The Assiniboine River skirts the southern boundary of the city, by which means regular and frequent communication is secured with all the river towns east and west, and with the interior. Farmers find here a ready market for their products and full lines of goods of all descriptions from which to select household articles of use or luxury. Stage lines connect Portage la Prairie with Westbourne, Woodside, Gladstone and other points in the interior, including the McKenzie farm eight miles west.

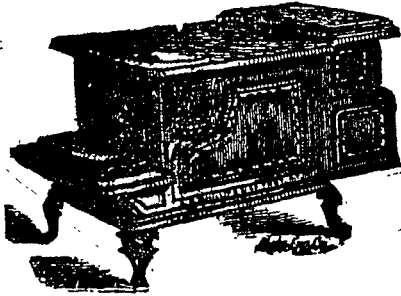

BRANDON.

Brandon is situated on the main line of the C. P. R. 145 miles west of Winnipeg, on the south bank of the Assiniboine, a magnificent view of which the elevated position of the town commands. Brandon is equidistant between the Souris and the Little Saskatchewan Rivers, and is Located 36 miles west of Winnipeg, is in the midst of a rapidly developing farming country. Agriculture is the principal pursuit of the people. Stock raising and horse breeding are also being carried on to a considerable extent. Farmers own from ten to fifty head of cattle and horses each, and are constantly adding to their possessions.

of the timber belt which stretches east to the Lake of the Woods and north and south along its banks for many miles. The country around Selkirk is cultivated and produces wheat and root crops. Vessels from Lake Winnipeg come up to the town, bringing fish, lumber and provisions. Several fine steamers ply between this port and points on Lake Winnipeg, connecting with the magnificent palace steamers on the Saskatchewan.

RAT PORTAGE

Is beautifully situated on the north shore of Lake of the Woods, 136 miles east of Winnipeg, and is a favorite summer resort for tourists, pleasure seekers, hunters and health seekers. It is here the lake empties into Winnipeg River through two narrow defiles, both of which are spanned by the substantial iron truss bridges of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The scene from either of these bridges is beautiful beyond description: on the one hand the lake stretching away to the south and losing itself among the innumerable islands which dot its surface; on the other the rapids, the rushing waters of the lake pouring through the openings in the rocks into the river. Hunting and fishing in this vicinity is a favorite pastime with visitors, and the one pursuit of the hundreds of Indians who live on the lake islands. The natural water power afforded here is unexcelled in the world, the fall being 18 feet to one mile. Flouring mills are to be erected, and thus a part of the production of the country along the line of the road utilized. A large number of gold and silver quartz specimens have been found within ten miles of Rat Portage, and an almost unbroken vein traced for a distance of two miles, which has led to the very well grounded hope that mining operations will be extensively prosecuted here at no distant day. The timber supply in this vicinity is practically inexhaustible, and timber for building purposes will undoubtedly be supplied from these forests for many years to come. The lumber interests here are already very large, as they are also at Winnipeg River, Deception and other points along the line in this immediate neighborhood.

OTTERBOURNE

Is 31 miles from Winnipeg, on the Pembina Branch, Red River Division of the C.P.R., and is the centre of a fine agricultural country. The land

OTHER TOWNS.

There are a number of other towns along the main line and branches of the Canadian Pacific Railway which partake of the general features of those specially mentioned. In the agricultural districts are Arnaud, Birds Hill, Gonor, Dufrost, St. Norbert, Hanlan, Poplar Heights, Ossa-wa, High Bluff, McGregor, Austin, Sidney, DeWinton, Sewell, Chater and Grand Valley, all in the midst of a thriving agricultural country. Among the timber lands and in the "Lake Country" are Tyndall, Beausejour, Brockenhead River, Monmouth, Shelly, Whitemouth, Darwin, Rennie, Telford and Cross Lake.

POPULATION AND RAILWAY CONNECTION.

The population of Manitoba has increased wonderfully during the last year or two, the greater portion of which are actual settlers who have ere this taken up their lands, and improved a portion of them sufficient to show that they "mean business," and intend making a competency out of the soil. Eleven years ago the population numbered only a few hundred; while statistics of to-day prove it to be 190,000, of which the city of Winnipeg numbers 20,000. Of course the figures here given cannot be said to be official, as it is impossible to enumerate the population to a fraction owing to the transitory state of the country, but they are the estimates of the best authorities and can be relied upon. At all events the tide of emigration keeps pouring in and is composed of settlers of the right sort, most of whom are farmers sons and old country people who bring capital sufficient for not only taking up their land, but also for building purposes and the purchase of stock, just such as will soon turn the vast prairie into a smiling garden of grain and produce.

Besides these are numerous companies who operating on a much larger scale, employing large numbers of men, are bringing under cultivation whole Townships, that will ere long return them princely fortunes for their enterprise.

The objection hitherto raised, viz: want of means for transportation, is being rapidly done away with. The Canada Pacific Railway already extends 163 miles west of Winnipeg and will in the course of a couple of years reach as far west as the Rocky Mountains.

In fact within a very few years Manitoba will have a complete network of railway, which together with the means of navigation, will give to it all the means to be desired for connecting with the sister provinces and old countries.

THE assessors' roll of Portage la Prairie having been examined and revised, it is found that the assessment of the town amounts to $7,500,000. Last year it was only $800,000.
